Until a few years ago, Taylor Swift had a reputation as the Queen of Breakup songs. Sure, she does have a long list of songs about her exes, but that isn't all she wrote. Taylor Swift is a great songwriter. Her songs are catchy, ear-pleasing, and sure to win at least two awards.

Taylor Swift started her music journey early at the age of 13. She used to sing a lot of country music. I had picked up well. The songs she wrote by herself were relatable for all the Millennials. Even today, her song "Love Story" plays on Valentine's Day every year. All the youngsters would imagine themselves as the main character and feel all the lyrics. Although Taylor Swift has a reputation for her breakup songs, what you need to know is that she is an excellent lyricist. That's her most crucial aspect: and that is Songwriting. Taylor Swift was always known for writing her lyrics and not having a writer to write songs for her.

The Process of Songwriting

She once said, "If you do something bad to me, I will write about you. I'm that kind of person."

The singer-songwriter stated that her "wacky" composing mode would see her categorize songs into three genres: "Quill Lyrics," "Fountain Pen Lyrics," and "Glitter Gel Pen Lyrics."

"I created these categories based on the writing tool I imagined having in my hand when I scribbled it figuratively. I don't even have a quill. Anymore. 'I broke it once when I was angry,' Swift admitted.

*In her own words,

*Cause there we are again in the middle of the night
We're dancing around the kitchen in the refrigerator light
Down the stairs, I was there
I remember it all too well
And there we are again when nobody had to know
You kept me like a secret, but I kept you like an oath
Sacred prayer, and we'd swear to remember it all too well."*

According to Taylor Swift, The Genre Should Never Be Constant Songwriting

Taylor was never the one to keep herself restricted to one genre. She first started writing Country music. Her first two songs, 'Love Story' and 'You Belong With Me,' were generally into Country Music but stayed at the top in all genres. Her subsequent two albums, Fearless (2008) and Speak Now (2010), transitioned from country music to pop songs.

Later, her album 'Red,' extremely popular among the millennials back then, moved her from country pop to pop music. Her song 'We are never getting back together' stayed in Billboard's top 10 for 11 weeks straight. In those days, what people loved was a singer in pyjamas complaining about her ex-boyfriend was the most exciting part of the video. It followed with her album 1989. Her songs 'Shake It Off,' 'Blank Space,' and 'Bad Blood' were quite the rage among everyone. Her controversial album Reputation followed the same genre.

She quit Big Machine, joined Republic Records in 2018, and made her album Lover. While re-recording her old albums, she transitioned from Pop to Folk music with 'Folklore' and 'Evermore.' She moved into alternative folk with her latest album 'Midnights.'

Taylor Swift had a Lyrical Magic

Some of Taylor Swift's lyrics are just magical. She spins the words in a way that would catch your attention while making them sound almost like a Shakespearean. Some of her lyrics are so meaningful and attractive that they are hard to forget. Some of the portions of the song are so poetic you can Instagram them as your caption. Taylor Swift is known for decoding emotions through her songs. That may be the reason why her breakup songs are so famous. She captures them very well within her lyrics in the music. Some of them are:

"The old widow goes to the stone every day/ But I don't. I just sit here and wait/ grieve for the living" from Ivy.

"Never be so kind you forget to be clever / Never be so clever you forget to be kind" from Majorie
"You tell me about your past thinking your future was me." from All Too Well.

"I'm so sick of running as fast as I can, wondering if I can get there faster if I was a man" from The Man.
